

FEATURED PROFESSOR

Joseph E. Becker, Associate Professor of English and Comparative Literature and Chair of the Division of Arts and Humanities, attained his PhD from the University of Arkansas. His research interests include Romanticism, Comparative Mythology and Religion, Archetypal Criticism, Comparative Literature, American Transcendentalism, and Ecocriticism, Archetypal patterns in 19th century Euro-American Romantic literature, J. R. R. Tolkien's mythos, and Gnostic archetypes and symbolism in the poetry and art of William Blake. He has also been published in Facts on File.

FEATURED PROFESSOR

Scott Brickman is a professor of music and education at UMFK. He has his PhD in Music from Brandeis and researches topics such as the symphony, Computer/ Digital/ Electronic Music Composition, Music Composition, 19th Century music theory and analysis, Music Theory pedagogy for K-8 students, and electroacoustic music. He is a member of the College Music Society and is the co-chair of the Northeast Chapter of the Society of Composers. Scott teaches courses in the subjects of Music, First Year Experience, and Education.

FEATURED PROFESSOR

Steven Selva, Professor of Biology and Environmental Studies, has his PhD in Botany from Iowa State University. He studied Aquatic plan ecology and he has established an active research program in lichenology. He has been published multiple times, and is the coordinator of the Environmental Studies Program. He also manages the biology program and a 16-acre outdoor classroom and its collections.

